

Aero Club and Rival Merged On Equal Basis

Woodhouse Opposition to Move Overwhelmed by Vote of 590 to 5 and Plan of Union Is Triumphant

Other Ballot Unanimous
Officers To Be Chosen Half From One Organization and Half From the Other

The American Flying Club and the Aero Club of America voted last night to combine as the Aero Club of America, with new officers, half of them to be selected from each of the old organizations. The vote at the American Flying Club, 11 East Thirty-eighth Street, which will be the home of the new organization, was unanimously in favor of the amalgamation.

At the Aero Club of America, Madison Avenue and Forty-first Street, where a faction led by Henry Woodhouse, who recently was suspended from the board of governors of the club, has opposed amalgamation, the vote was 590 to 5. Mr. Woodhouse was not present at the meeting, but several of his supporters were.

They voiced their opposition to the plan in vigorous language. The meeting was held behind closed doors, but the weather necessitated open windows, and the stentorian tones of the "old guard" echoed up and down the avenue as they proposed motion after motion in an effort to delay proceedings, even if they could not defeat the union of the two clubs.

Flying Club Vote Unanimous
At the American Flying Club, where Lawrence L. Driggs, president of the club, presided, the motion to unite with the Aero Club of America was made by Major A. P. Loening, chairman of the Flying Club's half of a joint committee on amalgamation. George F. Houston seconded the motion, and it was carried without a dissenting vote.

When the vote on amalgamation had been taken at the American Flying Club, Frank H. Russell proposed a vote of appreciation of the services of its president, Mr. Driggs, in organizing the club and directly promoting its success. The members rose in a body and voted a thunderous affirmative, which developed into cheers for Mr. Driggs which lasted several minutes.

The American Flying Club was organized eighteen months ago in France by flyers in the air service of the United States Army. Formed by fighting aviators, the purpose of the club was declared to be the furtherance of aviation in the United States. Its organizers declared also their disapproval of the methods taken by its established rival, the Aero Club of America, to further such aims.

Despite its youth the American Flying Club soon obtained first place in air affairs and was the indirect cause of serious friction in the Aero Club of America. It arranged the New York-Toronto air race, the intercollegiate air meet and, with the army, conducted the transcontinental air race.

Faction Led by Woodhouse
In the Aero Club of America the element to which the newer organization objected was led by Mr. Woodhouse, who was not only a member of the board of governors of that club and prominent in its diminishing activities, but also was the publisher of its official organ, "Flying."

Internal revolt against the dominance of Mr. Woodhouse broke out in the Aero Club as its rivals' successes became more and more pronounced and the proposal for a union of the two clubs was looked upon kindly by the rebels. While the strife was on the District Attorney's mansion an inquiry into the administration of the National Airplane Fund collected by the Aero Club in 1916, and the board of governors voted to prosecute such an inquiry on its own initiative, declaring itself at the same time to be in favor of an amalgamation of all aero organizations in the country.

The opposition to the Woodhouse forces became so strong after that that a week ago Wednesday the board of governors suspended Mr. Woodhouse as one of its members and likewise severed the club's official connection with his magazine, "Flying."

Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of air service and a member of the American Flying Club, gave out a statement after the vote had been taken at both clubs in which he said:

"The amalgamation of the Aero Club of America and the American Flying Club marks an epoch in the development of national defense in the United States because the combined club will do for aviation what the Navy League has done for the navy and the National Defense League for the army."

"Best Elements Together"
"The combined clubs bring together all the best elements in aviation that this country possesses. Nothing has happened in the development of our whole national defense system which will have a greater effect than this consolidation."

The joint committee appointed by the two clubs to name a slate of officers giving representation to each organization made public the following list of men proposed for the board of governors, class A:

Jefferson de Mont Thompson, Charles Jerome Edwards, Henry A. Wise Wood, W. Reedwood Cross, James A. Blair Jr., Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske (retired), Charles L. Poor, Philip A. Carroll and William W. Miller, of the Aero Club; and Colonel G. C. Brant, Cortlandt S. Bishop, F. Trubee Davidson, Robert Olynth, of the American Flying Club; and Capt. Arthur O'Brien, Douglas Campbell and Maurice Cleary, of the American Flying Club. For the board of governors, class B, the men nominated are Geoffrey L. Cabot, Howard E. Coffin, Augustus Post and W. L. Saunders, of the Aero Club; and Benedict Crowell and Eddie Glickensacker, of the American Flying Club.

Gas Rate Raise Delayed
Court Continues Stay Obtained in Bronx Case

The stay obtained by the Public Service Commission against the Bronx Gas and Electric Company to prevent that company from putting into effect the new rate of $1.75 for gas was continued yesterday by Justice Hendrick in Special Term. Part I of the Supreme Court. The stay holds until such time as Supreme Court Justice Mulligan shall hear and determine an application of the commission to vacate the injunction order granted to the company last year, under which the commission was enjoined from attempting to enforce the statutory maximum rates against the company. The company has since been charging $1.50 a thousand cubic feet, but now desires to increase the rate to $1.75.

Brassie Myers, 6, Killed By Auto at Narragansett

Daughter of Mrs. Blakeman Quinfant Myers, Runs in Front of Machine.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 17.—Brassie Myers, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blakeman Quinfant Myers, of New York City and the Villa colony at Narragansett Pier, was struck and killed by an automobile near the Myers home on the Boston Neck Road early Sunday evening. The owner of the machine is Patrick H. Daniels of Pawtucket, and the driver, Walter L. Dolan.

The child, who was walking on the road with two other children and two nurses, darted away from her companions, directly into the path of the Daniels' machine, which was passing another automobile. The child was dead when she was picked up.

Dolan gave himself up to the police and was arraigned this morning before Judge Nathan B. Lewis on a charge of speeding. He pleaded not guilty. The case was continued for two weeks, and Dolan released on $500 bail.

The child was a granddaughter of Mrs. James W. Cook. Her father was in New York at the time of the accident. Mr. Myers arrived from New York late yesterday morning, and after investigating the circumstances of the accident, said he would not press charges against Mr. Dolan.

He Shoots at Wife And Brother-in-Law, Wounds 2 Children

Assailant Is Himself Shot by Patrolman After Chase; Asserts He Was Cheated and Sought Vengeance

Three weeks ago Nicholas Valaski, dishwasher in a Third Avenue dairy lunch, drew his first pay from his new job. He spent most of it to buy a revolver. Last night he used it. But he missed his wife and brother-in-law at whom he shot, and seriously wounded two children.

After accidentally shooting the children Valaski was himself shot by Patrolman Martin Cunningham, of the East Eighty-eighth Street station. He was taken to Bellevue suffering from wounds in the left leg and hip. His weapon was turned in at the police station.

Rose Bialostotsky, two years old, of 332 East Ninety-fifth Street, one of the children shot, was taken to Mount Sinai Hospital. The other child, Sylvia Bruckner, six years old, of 307 East Ninety-fifth Street, was removed to Reception Hospital. Rose was shot in the back and Sylvia in the right cheek.

Valaski's wife, Anastasia, and her brother-in-law, Basilio Kritikos, were badly scared, but that was all. They will be ready and eager to press charges against the restaurant dishwasher when he is permitted to leave Bellevue. He is a prisoner at the hospital, charged with felonious assault.

Valaski didn't go to work yesterday. He remained all day in the neighborhood of 332 East Ninety-fifth Street, while his wife and her brother-in-law were staying. Last night Valaski saw the pair walking down the steps of the house. When the woman and man reached the sidewalk Valaski leveled his revolver and fired. His wife and her brother-in-law ran, but the two children who had been playing with others on the stoop toppled over.

Valaski told the police that his wife and her brother-in-law had refused to give him $500 which was his share in the business in which the three of them had been engaged in North Carolina. He said he had also been thrown out of the house and that he immediately decided that he'd kill them as soon as he got money enough to buy a pistol.

Hitch in Bail Keeps Ponzi in County Prison

Friends of Speculator Unable to Get Promise That He Will Not Be Arrested Again if Freed $5,000,000 Debts Found

More Than 5,000 Claims, Exceeding $2,000,000, Examined by Officials

Special Dispatch to The Tribune
BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Charles Ponzi, lately hailed as a "financial wizard," and whose speculations led to his arrest on charges of fraud, spent today and to-night in jail at East Cambridge, although friends and counsel had arranged for a new bondman to supersede Morris Rudnick, who withdrew as his security.

The hitch in the new bail arrangements was due to the inability of counsel for Ponzi to arrive at a definite understanding with Attorney General J. Weston Allen of Massachusetts, that would assure them that after their client had again been comfortably bailed on the present charge of fifty-three counts, he would not again be rearrested and additional bail demanded of him.

If Ponzi remains in the county jail, where he is now, he will presumably go to trial in the Federal Court without passing into the hands of the state authorities. In the event of conviction of the charge of using the mails to defraud he might be given a five-year sentence, and eventually be released after public interest in his case had waned and after state officials who have prepared charges against him had passed out of office.

New Warrant Issued
A warrant for another arrest in connection with the Ponzi scandal was granted in the Municipal Court today on application of Assistant Attorney General Hurwitz. The name in the warrant was kept kept, but the arrest was expected momentarily.

The only information Mr. Hurwitz would divulge was that the warrant was for some one besides Ponzi. The next person expected to be scooped up in the net of the authorities is understood to be one of Ponzi's agents. This man is alleged to have been in the employ of the fallen money king from the time he first opened his doors for business.

Edwin L. Pride, Federal auditor of Ponzi's books, said today that his investigation had already revealed liabilities of $5,000,000, not counting the 45 per cent interest promised by the "get-rich-quick" financier. The $5,000,000 represents merely the principal of the loans made by Ponzi.

More than five thousand Ponzi claims, totaling $2,121,898.07, have been presented to Attorney General Allen for examination, according to figures announced. It was revealed that the average Ponzi note submitted was around $435. One for $30,000, another for $10,000 and one for $7,500 were among those submitted.

Today's mail alone brought an additional thousand claims. Meanwhile, Ponzi's liabilities continue to pile up. More and more people are reporting at the office of the Attorney General at the State House, presenting Ponzi notes for thousands of dollars.

Mrs. Ponzi is said to be without funds, although state and Federal authorities are searching for concealed assets. There is plenty of talk to the effect that the Ponzi family million sailed away. Both Ponzi and his wife deny the assertion.

Ponzi Family Unhappy
The whole Ponzi affair is leaving behind a trail of unhappiness, not only among noteholders, but in Ponzi's own family. His aged mother is in seclusion at her son's Lexington mansion; his wife presents a heart-broken appearance, and Ponzi himself, puffing stolidly at a pipe—cigarettes being taboo in the East Cambridge jail—is reported by his jailers to be a very different Ponzi from the gay, jaunty, debonair "financial wizard" who not many days ago trilled the streets of Boston followed by a cheering throng.

Federal Auditor Pride believes that Mrs. Ponzi has already deposited some of the tenement house at 497 Blake Avenue, Brooklyn, resorted to force last Friday. According to the police, the tenants, who had been summoned to court and told they had until next April to find new quarters, launched a series of attacks upon an ice plant and other adjacent property belonging to Rubel Brothers, their landlords.

The owners estimated the damage at $2,400. Harry Blanche, eighteen years old, of 313 Snediker Avenue, Brownsville, was arrested yesterday and held by Magistrate Goldmar in the New Jersey Avenue Court on a charge of malicious mischief. Three men and three women were arrested on the same charge late last night.

cash and ready to free Ponzi until such time as he will be brought to trial.

Attorney General Allen said that nothing could be done toward releasing Ponzi until Ponzi gets bail to meet the Federal demands, after which the state demands must be met.

Ponzi spent a comfortable night in jail despite the heat. He had received a visit from his wife and had read all the Sunday newspapers. Lights were extinguished at 9 o'clock. Ponzi quickly fell into a sound sleep. He awakened early this morning and ate a hearty breakfast, which he paid for.

Depositors in the Hanover Trust Company, which was closed as a result of the Ponzi operations, will soon know just where they stand. Officials of the bank continue to assert that depositors will receive dollar for dollar.

Another move on the part of the state today is the retention by the state of former Attorney General Henry A. Wyman, expert on banking and bank laws, who will act as adviser to Bank Commissioner Allen.

It was said this move was made to provide Commissioner Allen with the best legal talent on banks, provided the Federal authorities insisted upon calling for the books of the Hanover Trust Company, now being examined by the state's officials.

When asked about the possible reopening of the Hanover Trust Company within a short while, Bank Commissioner Allen said:

"In view of the fact that the examination of the Hanover Trust Company has not yet been completed it is obviously impossible to have any opinion as to the outcome of affairs there. It will probably be a long time before the examination and investigation is completed."

Receiving word from some source that Bank Commissioner Allen could cash Ponzi checks on the Hanover Trust Company, several hundred Italians and Poles flocked to his office in the State House today, insisting upon payment. After some difficulty he made it clear that they had been misinformed.

Robbers Carry Out Cash Registers From Stores
Eighth Avenue Lunchman Faces Bandits After Handing Out Package of Cigarettes

While Abraham Guryan, proprietor of the Hamilton Lunch, 548 Eighth Avenue, was handing out a package of cigarettes to a customer yesterday, he saw two other men making for the front door with his cash register. Guryan shouted at them to stop, whereupon two other men appeared and, at the point of revolvers, forced the proprietor to the rear of his restaurant. They then ran out and leaped into a taxicab in which the party of five had driven up.

Guryan, his cook and a waiter pursued the car up Eighth Avenue, only to lose track of it beyond Sixty-ninth Street.

The restaurant of William Costello at 1550 Amsterdam Avenue was robbed of its cash register early yesterday by two men. Patrolman Patrick Mitchell saw them carrying away the register and gave chase. A shot, fired on the run, brought Daniel Murphy, of 2170 Amsterdam Avenue, as he turned into 138th Street, to a standstill. Murphy dropped the register and raised his hands.

Another man was running down 139th Street and did not stop when the patrolman fired two more shots.

The door of the restaurant had been forced. The register contained $26. Murphy was arraigned in Washington Heights court on a charge of burglary.

Seven Tenants Arrested
Wreck Property, It Is Charged, After Notice to Move

Incessant by decision of the owners of their dwelling place to convert the property for business uses, occupants of the tenement house at 497 Blake Avenue, Brooklyn, resorted to force last Friday. Six Jump Bail After Saratoga Gambling Raid

Five Men and Woman Fail to Appear at Arraignment and Court Orders Their Bonds Forfeited

Bench Warrants Issued

Prosecutor Says Freeing of Prisoners Was Virtually Jail Delivery

From a Staff Correspondent
BALLSTON SPA, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Six of the prisoners arrested in the gambling raids made at Saratoga Springs early Sunday morning failed to appear in court for arraignment to-day and their bail was declared forfeited. Bench warrants for their rearrest were issued.

District Attorney Bascom, of Washington County, who was transferred to this county to handle the grand jury investigation of gambling at Saratoga Springs, characterized the granting of bail to the prisoners taken in the raids as virtually "a jail delivery."

Bail furnished by the following was declared forfeited: David O. Moore, Eben Johnson, Barsoldi Millian, John Stone, J. F. Gordon and Laura Seger. The amount in one case was $500; in the other $100 each.

Taken Before Two Judges
Mr. Bascom also scathingly denounced the police officials of Saratoga Springs, saying that it was evident the gambling fraternity was "all-powerful in Saratoga Springs" and that it was "mightier than the law."

Mr. Bascom told Judge Van Kirk that after the arrests the prisoners were locked up and directions given the sheriff that no one was to be allowed to communicate with them. In spite of this, he said, they were taken before two judges yesterday and their release on bond was effected.

Judge Salisbury, of Saratoga Springs, refused to hear the applications for bail. Later bail was granted the prisoners by City Judge McTyghe.

The raids were conducted by officers of Mr. Bascom's staff. Some of those seized were found actually operating roulette wheels, it is alleged.

Justice Van Kirk said he did not see that he could do anything, but thought it unusual that Mr. Bascom had not been notified of the applications for bail.

Attorney Rockwood, for the defense, said the prisoners had been arrested without warrants, except a search warrant issued by Judge Van Kirk. He objected to the arraignment of the prisoners on the ground that the procedure was improper, inasmuch as written information had not been filed. He attacked the jurisdiction of the court, asserting the hearings should be held in Saratoga Springs.

Justice Van Kirk ruled that a Supreme Court Justice might sit as a magistrate anywhere within his own district.

Those Arraigned
Those arraigned were John Butler, Harry Langer, Patrick Flynn, Max Kaufmann, Abraham Perbus, Charles Clarke and Abe Brown.

District Attorney Charles B. Andrus, of Saratoga County, appeared in the Ponzi's Promise!

WHICH would you choose—50% promise without security or 6% interest with a Guarantee in writing that every dollar of your principal would be returned to you on the date of maturity?

That is a typical question which each investor must decide for himself and there is but one logical decision, founded on the facts of what investments have done. That is—insist upon safety!

High interest rates indicate doubtful security and those who have built lasting fortunes have steered by the old-fashioned considerations of safety. The real fortune builders are the men and women who lay the foundation for the future, bond by bond, year in and year out. Patience is their strongest virtue, for patience builds more fortunes than are ever reared by genius.

Safety is the measure of all investments and that is why some securities are Guaranteed to emphasize this feature of absolute security.

Ponzi promised to pay, but he did not have the promise Guaranteed by a responsible organization, whose capital and surplus were pledged to pay its bondholders. We have prepared a booklet which describes in detail the many safeguards with which an absolutely safe investment should be surrounded. We will send it to you without obligation on your part; write for it today.
